

The Department of Environment, University of the Aegean, Greece, is launching the Aegean Journal of Environmental Sciences (AEJES), an open-access, free of charge e-journal.

AEJES publishes peer reviewed, original research on the study of the natural environment and on the society-nature interactions. AEJES prime aim is to provide a forum for postgraduate (M.Sc. and Ph.D.) students on environmental sciences programs to publish their research yet it also strongly welcomes contributions from established scholars/researchers in the field.

Research Areas include, but are not exclusive to:

- Environmental Politics, Policy and Sociology
- Environmental Economics and Management
- Environmental Education
- Environmental Pollution and Restoration
- Biodiversity and Conservation
- Global Environmental Change
- Environmental Health and Toxicology

Further information may be found at AEJES website:

<http://www.aegean.gr/environment/aejes/>